SESSION OVERVIEW

When managing patients with hip and knee problems it is common for the patient to ask their doctor which treatment will give them the best and most immediate source of pain relief or cure for their problem. There are many non-operative and operative treatments, therapies and new technologies which patients often enquire about as part of their consultation. This educational session will aim to address many of these techniques and give you an insight into what orthopaedic specialists and physiotherapists believe are the best options.

LEARNING OUTCOMES

1. List the common knee and hip problems presenting to GPs.
2. Differentiate which management options are more likely to work and if there are any differences in management techniques.
3. Explain physiotherapy management options of knee and hip OA – non-surgical management and physiotherapy in the post-operative setting.
